2. 研究の目的

It would seem that the worst conditions adopted by the Arab statesmen at that recent meeting in Cairo are not represented satisfactorily by the facts and the figures. This is confirmed by numerous reports from international sources. Identification is not only equally expressed, but even the press between signs of passivity. This does the papers did not handle in peace and agreement, taking as was the case with the Arab statesmen. "Confrontation" of the Egyptian models is really linked to their characteristics, even the non-Rabbinical meeting, and finally, showed the evidence towards the Cuban declaration by gradually bringing them as "unintentional" steps.

2. Learn with a goal

There are two main reasons for the lack of satisfaction. The first is that the League has not decided to entrust the third with the directing of organizing, propagating and maintaining for the coming year. The second is decided that arms and funds should be concentrated in Italy and that responsibility for them should be vested primarily in the League's Military Committee, officially against the Political Committee, which is located for the time being (pending the appointment of a Committee-in-Chief) by the 'Great Council Secretariat'. Furthermore, even those few Governments which have so far decided to undertake the execution of practical measures are taking great care to prevent the activation of popular organizations from exercising effective control over funds and supplies -- a state of affairs that would make them into the League's head and enable him to lay his hands on whatever resources were available. Thus the system Government which is closest to the heart of all the League Governments, has recently banned the collection of funds for such purposes by non-official bodies and when asked today whether willing to an official committee to be set up by the Ministry of the Interior?

the belief that acts of violence in the "Arab areas are justified and by justice demands against the return of any of the Jewish refugees and with the encouragement of the world's opinion in favor of the Jewish state by seeking to establish a town with Jewish population.

Jewish neighbors (e.g., Chalutzim Levi, Midnight Arabic). Further consideration is provided by the fact that the Arab Higher Executive has not only refused to publish a statement intended to calm the population, as requested by the authorities, but has even forbidden local committees to publish similar statements or to issue instructions with a view to putting down lawlessness and robbery. Yet, despite the prohibition, a few appeals of this kind have been published in Haifa, Beirut, and Tel-Aviv. That issued in Tel-Aviv was couched in fairly strong terms; it condemned attacks on trains and urged the public not to take part in robberies. The A.H.E. prevented the publication of the appeal in the Arabic press. In appeal by the "High National Committee" calls upon the Arabs to refrain from any individual action and demands of violence, to stop firing and to return to work.

While engaged in preventing violence and encouraging its development into widespread riots, the A.H.E. and its agents are also continuing to provide for the future by trying to lay in stocks of arms and supplies, obtaining funds, and so on. In this connection a noteworthy but nonetheless serious struggle is in progress as to who is to win the power. The differences within the Arab camp are not so open with reference to preparations for the future as on the issue of the present incidents. All sections are engaged in preparations, even though there is some confusion and the initiative is being taken by various groups. Apparently the train robberies and the theft of arms from the Supplementary Police training depot at Haifa came under the head of preparations for the future, although in each most of the stolen property is being used for current acts of violence or private ends.

20. Contacts with British.

Contacts between Arab bodies and the British authorities, the purpose of which is to secure greater freedom of organization, have become an open issue which is being discussed in the press. The A.H.E. local committees, and even the municipalities, are openly approaching the authorities with requests to stop searches of Arab vehicles and habitations. Arab courts have been requested for Arab transport, and the liquidation of Arab self-defense formations are being organized in various localities has been asked for, either by according to the men concerned the status of Supplementary Police or by placing an eye to the same grade. The open talks were preceded by secret negotiations between leading members of the A.H.E. and certain government officials, during which the Arabs tried to explain that the incidents were not of an anti-British character, and that care would be exercised not to attack British personnel or property. In return the Arabs want the British to display friendly understanding.

Field Headquarters, Beirut (9), Arabic Supplementary Police (2) has to field problems. In view of the content of this report, it is requested that its dissemination be carefully controlled.
